

SAAD SHAFI - BCCI Country Manager
NASSAU, BAHAMAS

(SS): Uh-huh.

(RM): - and I know that, through the companies we have, and Amjad has been to them and knows what I'm speaking of, but at the brokerage firm and the investment company, and the mortgage company, we have the type of appearance, at least on its surface, that satisfies the most inquisitive of minds, and so I feel good about it, and I've visited many of your branches, and I have that same feeling. I haven't just relied on a financial statement and said, "well, I'm sure everything is okay." I've taken the time to make sure that I go there myself. And I've seen everything. Even so, my clients, I couldn't stress enough, are very professional. They are the type of individuals who, I think if they were in the same rooms with the likes of Lee Iacocca, they would probably be interpreted as being affiliated with him, you know, Lee Iacocca sells cars in the United States; my clients for their own reasons, sell cocaine in the United States, and what they do is their business. What I do is my business, and I'm a wall between them -

(SS): Uh-huh.

(RM): - and yourself.

(SS): Sure.

(RM): All right. Well, I'm glad we got the chance to chat. I promise you I will not put you in a - an uncomfortable position.

(SS): Thank you.

(RM): These gents may be the more famous drug dealers in South America, but they're not -

(SS): Uh-huh.

(RM): - sloppy and they're not stupid, and -

(SS): Sure.

(RM): - with everyone working well together, these things can be accomplished with little or no problem, so I'm -

(SS): Okay.
