

The Taliban leader in Badghis Province has agreed to a ceasefire during next month's presidential elections. The province is in a remote section of the country, but the Afghan government would like to make similar deals with moderate Taliban groups in other parts of Afghanistan.