Stephanie,

you are absolutely right. There is no pain greater than losing a child. From the day Mark was born I have loved him more than life itself. He gave me nothing but joy. I was proud of his many accomplishments and words can't describe the love I felt for his family.

You ask how I feel about my son's death. I pray that you never have to experience the pain and torment I live with every day. I realize that my pain will never take away the loss and suffering that you and the children feel. I would gladly give my own life if I thought it would bring Mark back. From the day of his death life has no meaning for me. I blame myself for everything that has happened and nothing will ever change this.

You ask how I can live with myself. I can't, and don't know how much longer I can go on.

Stephanie, I can understand your hatred and anger towards me. Nothing I can say will probably change this.

However I feel I must say some things to you. It is clear that you have bought into the media's characterization of me. I know that you can't believe that it was ever my intention to harm my family. You saw first hand the love I had for my sons, wife, children and you.
